

A diagram of a horizontal beam of length l supported by n vertical supports. A distributed load q is applied over a portion of the beam, and a point load P is applied at a specific location. The beam is divided into segments by the supports and the load application points.

